

HOLSTEIN-FRIESIAN FIREPROOF BUILDING TO BE ERECTED HERE

The above is a reproduction of the architect's drawing of the fireproof building to be erected at the corner of Main and South Main streets for use as offices of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. The building will be owned by Arthur B. Clapp, who bought the site and is having the Young store property and other buildings removed. The structure is designed by A. L. Brockway, Syracuse, N. Y.

At the recent annual meeting of the association in Detroit President D. D. Aitken said with reference to this building in his annual address:

"The rapid expansion in the volume of business attendant upon the registration of pedigrees and the general work of your association has led to the necessity of larger quarters in which to transact it and has caused your directors to give consideration to the problem of finding roomier and better adapted quarters.

"A citizen of Brattleboro, who is a breeder of Holsteins and a member of the association, realizing our necessities, came forward with a proposition to furnish for our exclusive use, a modern fireproof building, designed especially for the purpose by an architect who is also a Holstein breeder and a member of this association and most familiar with the office requirements, by his service upon your board and as chairman of your finance committee.

"Your directors have accepted this favorable proposition and contracted to lease the building for a term of ten years, and there is now in course of erection an office building which will meet all requirements for years to come, in which we may all take pride, and which will eliminate all questions of risk of loss by fire and materially decrease the cost of insurance. This building will be ready for occupancy in a few months."

COLONEL FOR HUGHES?

New York Conferences Believed to Presage Harmony.

NEW YORK, June 17. The dawn of political peace, having abidingly yesterday from the camps of Colonel Roosevelt and Charles Evans Hughes. Its butting left to doubt in the minds of political observers that the way is being paved for the colonel to come out definitely in a short time and announce his intention of lending his support to the election of the Republican nominee.

A series of conferences throughout the day between George W. Perkins and Governor Whitman, the one representing the colonel, the other Mr. Hughes, looked up significantly in the prospect for harmony. Both conferences reported to their principals the progress made, but neither would talk for publication when the discussions ended not long before midnight. Enough was said, however, to indicate that the welcome is being prepared for the return of as many of the Progressives as the colonel may be able to deliver when he returns to the fold himself.

SATISFACTORY SERVICE

To the unthinking individual, all banks are alike. To the depositor who recognizes the care and attention given by a well-ordered financial institution to the details of his business as entrusted to it, there comes a sense of appreciation of the service rendered and a recognition of the fact that there are BANKS and banks.

During its thirty-three years of existence, The Burlington Trust Company has endeavored to perform a satisfactory service for its large list of depositors, and the evidence of its success is found in the growing patronage and steadily increasing volume of business that is daily written on its books. It has set the pace in many ways for its rivals in the banking business, but only in such a consistent way as to merit the approval of its patrons. Although a corporation, it has "mutualized" its character by sharing its success with its depositors by way of the payment of "extra dividends" and in other ways has undertaken to render the most satisfactory service possible.

It attempts to supply every need of the business house or individual within the range of sound and judicious banking. It invites suggestions and honest criticisms and continually strives to meet all legitimate demands from borrowers.

If you have no business relations with this bank, we invite you to correspond with us, with a view to establishing them. It will give us a pleasure to demonstrate the character of the service we render.

The Legislature of 1912

(Vermont Tribune.)

The list of the "offenses" of Hon. Alden M. Fletcher during his administration as governor, so generously omitted in the St. Albans Messenger's list of that official's transgressions, and supplied in the columns of the Tribune, has attracted the attention of the St. Johnsbury Caledonian, and that esteemed contemporary has been moved to make — unconsciously, but nevertheless appreciably — the greatest tribute yet paid to Governor Fletcher's service to the state. The Caledonian thinks the legislature of 1912 should be given credit for the measures mentioned as having been pushed through the legislature under the leadership of Mr. Fletcher as governor. And that is precisely the credit that Mr. Fletcher gives.

From the very outset Mr. Fletcher has pronounced the legislature of 1912 one of the most efficient, constructive and faithful general assemblies with which the memory of the recent generation, and he will doubtless regard it as a high complement that an opposing power should deem the "offenses" named deserving enough to be credited to the legislature in question. He has been content to bear the "sticks" aimed at him by a few inspired news-papers, but he is generous enough to give full credit to the lawmakers who so faithfully cooperated to do what is coming at this late date to be recognized as a great service for the commonwealth. Indeed, the friends of Governor Fletcher know that he is determined, no matter what else happens, that the legislature of 1912 shall receive the credit that it failed to receive owing to a campaign of misrepresentation so vigorously waged against his administration and all having anything to do with it.

A brief summary of this service for the benefit of the people of Vermont will be interesting and informing. For instance:

Measures to equalize the burdens of taxation.

Increasing the taxes of the railroads by the sum of $240,000 biennially, and the taxes of the express companies by $25,000.

Forcing the American Express company to pay its taxes like other people.

Measures regarding freight dumping, for the benefit of the shipping public.

Regulation of the railroad lobbyists who sought to dominate legislation, especially through the senate.

Steps to prevent the attorney general from acting as a buffer between the railroads and the people.

Measures to force the attorney general to stop the inexcusable expenditure of $47,000 of the taxpayers' money biennially for detective expenses, compared to $6,000 a few years ago and $10,000 now.

Forcing the telephone companies to abolish charges for unnumbered calls, as in other states, and to stop "water-bug" stocks as a basis for increased charges to patrons through absorption of rivals and monopoly.

Order for a reduction in various excessive telephone rates, which for some mysterious reason has not been enforced, but has been allowed to remain indefinitely in the courts.

Saving of thousands of dollars through a state purchasing system.

Steps to provide adequate school facilities for Vermont youth.

Provision for a real public service commission as at present, and a public service law with "teeth" in it, to ensure better public service.

Steps to prevent reactionary judges from consolidating popular legislation into a mass of unworkable laws.

Provision for factory inspection, leading to improved sanitary conditions for workmen and women in factories.

Insistence that the voters of Vermont should have the right to nominate, directly, their own candidates for office.

Legislation to remove dangerous high voltage electric lines from the highways of the state through the medium of the public service commission.

Insistence upon such bonds furnished by state officials as any good business man would demand in dealing with his own affairs.

Measures to encourage the development of the water power of the state and at the same time reserve the benefits ultimately for the upbuilding of Vermont industries and the prosperity of our people.

The promotion of conservation of Vermont's resources in different departments, especially forestry, with increased publicity for Vermont attractions.

One of the greatest achievements of any administration since the progressive two years of the governorship of the late Hon. Fletcher D. Proctor is the measure urged by Mr. Fletcher during his campaign for the governorship, and enacted by the legislature of 1912, designed to keep Vermont money at home and enable our young farmers and young business men to start in life for themselves here at home instead of being forced to go to other states where millions of Vermont money had helped to build up other communities. As the years go by this great movement to encourage Vermont money to build up the Green Mountain state will stand out as one of the most beneficent measures ever embodied in Vermont statutes. This one act alone entitles Governor Fletcher and the legislature of 1912 to the gratitude of all Vermonters.
